In today's daily briefing, Dr. Bonnie Henry, provincial health officer, reported two new cases of COVID-19 in B.C., bringing the total number of people who have tested positive to 2,446 since the pandemic began. Of those, 883 have been in the Vancouver Coastal Health (VCH) region. Pandemic pay supports front-line health-care workers

Earlier today, Carole James, Minister of Finance, announced that health and social service workers delivering in-person, front-line care to some of B.C.'s most vulnerable people will receive a financial boost through temporary COVID-19 pandemic pay. More than 250,000 eligible front-line workers will receive temporary pandemic pay, a lump-sum payment of about $4 per hour for a 16-week period, starting on March 15, 2020. Eligible workers will receive the payment directly through their employer and do not need to apply.

Canada-U.S. border closure extended

Earlier today, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau announced an extension of the mutual ban on non-essential cross-border travel until June 21. The agreement, which prohibits non-essential travel while permitting trade shipments, commerce and essential workers to continue to move in both directions, was first reached in mid-March and extended for 30 days last month.

Anyone in the VCH region with cold, influenza or COVID-19-like symptoms, however mild, can now be assessed for and get a COVID-19 test. Contact your physician or nurse practitioner's office, or a local community collection centre to arrange for a test. Phone numbers and locations of collection centre can be found by visiting: <http://www.bccdc.ca/health-info/diseases-conditions/covid-19/testing> or by calling 8-1-1.
