

SERVICE ELIGIBILITY

The Vancouver Community Short Term Assessment and Treatment (STAT) Centre is a community bed-based program, providing specialized assessment and treatment to older adults (generally aged 65 years and older), with physical and/ or mental health concerns that co-exist with a combination of age-related psychological, cognitive, functional, and social needs.

Through interdisciplinary, person-centered care, we work to enhance each individual's capacity to return to their optimal level of functioning and well-being, and to support safe and sustainable transitions.

Anticipated LOS 4-8 weeks

Program Criteria:

Vancouver residents generally aged 65 years or older:

- With complex physical and/or mental health concerns that co-exist with a combination of age-related psychological, cognitive, functional and social needs.

And

- A need for specialized older adult assessment and treatment in a structured bed-based setting to provide diagnostic clarification and/or initiate, monitor and adjust treatment.
- Has potential for stabilization and improved function with specialized older adult care.
- Requires a multidisciplinary approach to optimize physical, mental, psychological, cognitive, functional, and social health.

Please Note:

We do not serve individuals:

- With acute medical or psychiatric care needs, and with chronic pain as a singular presenting concern
- Whose health and mental health conditions are not expected to improve with additional assessment and treatment.
- Whose primary issue is disposition planning
- Who have cognitive impairment, and behavioral and/or psychological symptoms specifically related to a non-progressive neurocognitive disorder, such as that associated with acquired brain injuries.

These individuals require a different type of care and support expertise than can be provided by the STAT Program.
